Senior Garden Club enjoys harvest of good friendships

By Seth Daniel

The scent of basil and lavender are quite apparent in the early fall sun aside the Connolly Center these days.

The small vegetable garden sits in the side yard accompanied by a good number of herb plots has blossomed this fall under the care of the Everett Senior Garden Club, which is sponsored by the Cambridge Health Alliance's Aging Wisely program. It's the second year for the program, said Director Kathleen O'Brien, and this year it's really taken off.

That's in no small part related to the efforts of Rose DeMaria, an expert gardener with her own operations at her home who has also recruited several friends from the Center to work in the club's garden.

"We don't waste anything," she said. "We use it all and it's very fresh food. We're going to have an end-of-season lunch later and all of us are looking forward to that."

DeMaria and O'Brien spurred on several other members to try gardening for the first time, or to pick it back up after many years of not gardening. The kick off came last year when DeMaria had everyone over to her home for a complete fresh meal from her garden.

"When Rosa had us over and fed us, that's what convinced me," said Mary Piorun, who is 97. "I left there saying I went all my life without a garden, and I should have had a garden. You can really get your hands into it... I have a hard time seeing, but I can get really close to the vegetables. I can see them and feel them in my hands and that means I can watch it grow. You can see how little it was and the next week how much bigger it's become. I like the basil and the celery and the tomatoes - I just pick them and eat them. We're going to get a lot more next year because we've all learned so much."

O'Brien said the group begins the process by meeting in February and making a plan for the garden. Then they start growing all of the plants from seed before the last frost. Once the gardening starts, they participate in activities like making fresh salad dressings from their herbs, choosing the one they like the best to eat on a salad grown in-house.

Meeting every other Thursday, the activities are also complemented by visits from specialists who work at the hospital, such as a nutritionist, a geriatrician and a yoga instructor.

"The food and nutrition is important, but also socializing, making friends and having so much fun together is very important to good health," said O'Brien. "Many of those in the club have been

Chapter 70 money stalls at City Hall despite School Committee request

By Seth Daniel

Mayor Carlo DeMaria said the administration will not pass on $2.5 million in additional funds for the Everett Schools recently designated by the State Legislature to help cover the losses for funding formula flaws.

Instead, the mayor said they would retain the money in City accounts to help lower the tax rate for property owners. He pointed to the $6.5 million in additional monies already directed to the schools this year from the City during the budget process last June.

It was a similar action that was taken last year, and a move that partly inflamed the school budget showdown of last spring.

Typically, the money is designated by the legislature and sent to the City. The School Committee requests the money, and it is then passed on by the administration to the Council, who has the ultimate voting power to approve the matter.

In this case, DeMaria said he would not be passing the money on for a vote of the Council, which was expected to vote on the matter last night if it had been on the agenda, but it was not. The School Committee had officially voted to request the money on Oct. 1 at its meeting.

"The School Department was fully funded for their budget requests for this school year, with an additional $6.5 million in City funds above initial net school spending," said the mayor. "In addition, last year, my office and the City Council provided $5.5 million in additional funds to the school budget to make up

Teachers claim foul in police incident, schools say it was all about safety

By Seth Daniel

The controversy between the Everett Teachers Association (ETA) and the School Department intensified a bit this week when the teachers claimed that the schools had been heavy-handed in calling the police on them when they were gathering before in the parking lot of the Parlin School on Sept. 25.

It's a claim soundly refuted by Supt. Fred Forestreire who told the Independent they did ask the police to go by the school, but only because Internet accounts looked to suggest a large crowd might be assembled.

Forestreire said it was all about safety.

"They put an e-mail out encouraging people to come there and display unity with them," he said. "We didn't know who was coming. It could have been like what you saw at the School Committee last Monday where you had so many people so poorly behaved. We weren't sure, so we asked a cruiser to go there and when they got there and saw what was going on, they left...The Parlin School is our property and we do have kids coming and going. Safety is an issue. We didn't know who or what would be there. Safety and security is the bottom line and we didn't know what to expect."

In a letter to the Independent, signed by ETA President Kim Auger, the teachers alleged that on Sept. 25 they invited the president and vice president of the Massachusetts Teachers Association to the parking lot of the Parlin School. At the time, many changes were being made there by the administration

New program to promote safe streets

By Seth Daniel

If Prescott Street is to be more inviting, then let such an effort start with painting the crosswalks red.

That's just what happened on Sunday morning when volunteers from the street and volunteers from the NeighborWays organization got together to take their first action after several months of planning and recruiting on the street - which is a major cut-through for those going from Main Street to Air Force Road.

Mark Chase, the founder of NeighborWay and a Tufts University professor, said they have been working with and talking with neighbors on Prescott Street for several months about ways that could make the street a more pleasant pedestrian experience - while at the same time slowing down cars.

"It's a very community-based effort," he said. "We been working with people who live on the street to get them motivated to think of ways to make the street more friendly for walking. The idea is to make the street more comfortable and reduce problems encountered with getting around on foot, especially for things like walking a dog."

Mayor Carlo DeMaria said the effort on Prescott fits into his larger vision for making Everett more pedestrian and public transit friendly. He encouraged more residents on the street to get involved.

"I want to thank all the residents and neighbors who helped paint the Prescott Street crosswalks," he said. "You have shown our com-

MASSACHUSETTS MUST MOVE FORWARD ON OUR OWN

With the confirmation of Brett Kavanaugh to the U.S. Supreme Court, coming on the heels of the confirmation of Neil Gorsuch, it is clear that the America as we have known it for the past 70 years, a time in which the United States attained and maintained its supremacy in the world and achieved unprecedented prosperity for its people, has come to an end.

That may sound dramatic, but we don't think it is overstating the case.

In our view, the principal reason why America has prospered since the end of WWII, despite our many missteps (Vietnam, Watergate, and Iraq being the top three) is because we have expanded the rights of all of our citizens and we have welcomed people from all over the world to partake of, and contribute to, our wealth and our democratic ideals.

As regards the latter point, we would note that the majority of the Nobel prizes awarded to Americans in recent years have been won by persons who were immigrants. And let's not forget that Steve Jobs's father came from Syria and the parents of one of the founders of Google emigrated from Russia. They came to this country, as immigrants always have and still do, to create a better life for themselves and their families and to contribute to their new country.

However, there should be no doubt that the newly-constituted Supreme Court not merely will take us back to the pre-1930s, but rather will be in the vanguard of a new movement that is, at its core, anti-democratic.

The court in recent years already has eviscerated the Voting Rights Act and (via the Citizens United case) has entrenched the ability of the ultra-rich to throw unlimited amounts of cash into our electoral system.

Now, with the ascension of two more super-conservatives, the Supreme Court is set to turn back the clock on much of what most Americans have taken for granted for the past three generations in the realms of the rights of women, persons of color, and persons of different sexual orientations.

Hopefully, the Democrats will gain control of the House of Representatives in the fall -- and we say that not so much because we love Democrats, but because we need at least one house of Congress to act as a check on the White House -- but that will not change the direction of the Supreme Court.

So what does that mean for us in Massachusetts and the other states on the coasts (with a few pockets in between)?

In concrete terms, let us be welcoming to all people; let us be the safe harbors for a woman's right to choose (when the Supreme Court eviscerates Roe v. Wade, as it surely will); let us increase the minimum wage and be supportive of unions; let us prepare for the effects of climate change; let us enforce strict gun laws (to keep crime and mass shootings down); and let us make our states' educational systems world-class.

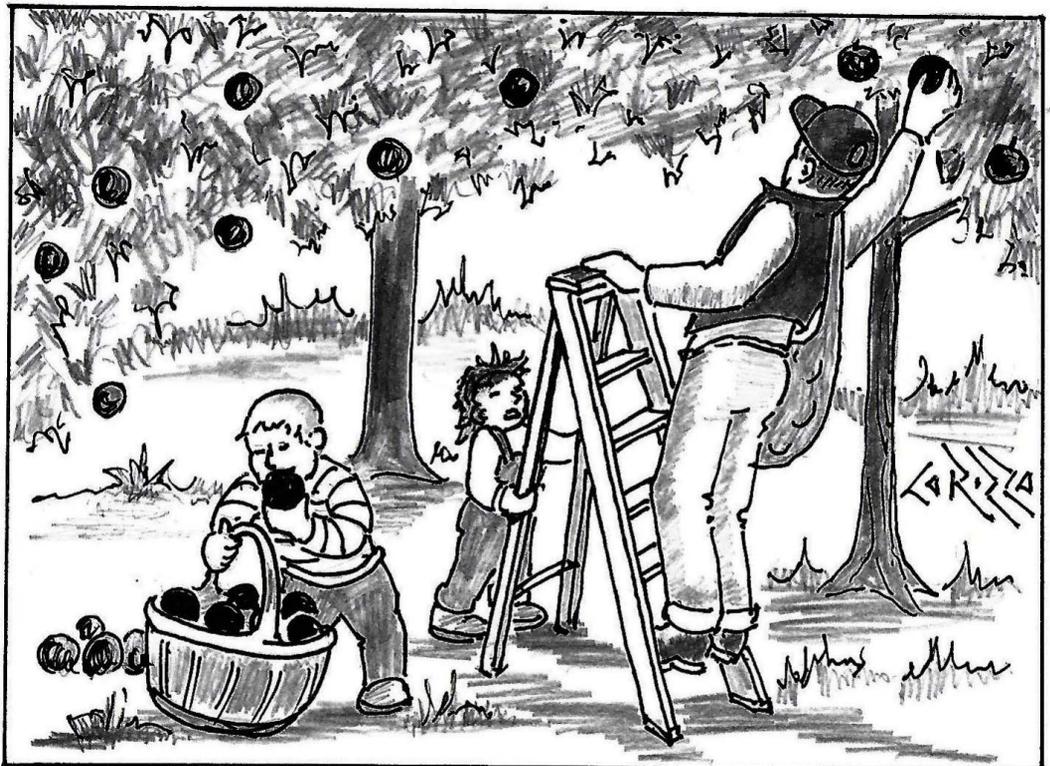

We need to be everything they are not

Think of it this way: Let's build our state's economy to take advantage of what they are giving up.

This will require two things: Out-of-the-box thinking by our elected leaders and an unprecedented partnership between the state and the business community, which must be convinced to partake of a partnership with the state in order to pursue our common goals.

In short, we must take our future into our own hands as we never before have imagined.

It will require lot of hard work and sacrifice -- but given what is happening at the national level, we have no choice.

GO OUT. ENJOY APPLE PICKING. DON'T BE AN IN-CIDER.

LETTER to the Editor

PROUD OF OUR TEACHERS

To the Editor:

We are proud that dozens of teachers from Everett and dozens more from nearby communities came to the School Committee last Monday night (Oct. 1) to show solidarity with Everett teachers who have been subjected to alleged bullying and intimidation for far too long in this district. We will not be silenced anymore.

We had to hold our own "speak-out" about the issues before the meeting because the Everett School Committee, unlike virtually every other School Committee in the state, does not have a public comment period at the start of every meeting.

But we will not be silenced.

On Sept. 25, we invited the president and vice president of the Massachusetts

Teachers Association to join us in the parking lot of the Parlin School to greet staff as they entered the building. We gave them coffee and doughnuts and an opportunity to share their concerns. Three police officers showed up and allegedly told us that the school administration claimed that we were "picketing" and would have to disperse. That's nonsense. We have every right as both citizens and union leaders to talk to our members. We left the lot as ordered, but we will not be silenced.

Union leaders in Burlington and elsewhere posted this news on social media and held morning coffee and doughnut sessions with their own members in solidarity with Everett teachers. Those efforts extended to encouraging their members to stand with Everett teachers at the School Committee meeting on Monday. On Monday we presented a grievance on behalf of two excellent Parlin teachers who, as union building representatives, had set up a Mutual Concerns Committee to hear the concerns of educators in the building. Rather than respect their efforts, the district transferred both teachers. They are now working as substitutes, which is both an insult and a waste of their talent. We are fighting this transfer because we will not be silenced.

Everett educators do an excellent job despite the work environment that too many of us face. There is a well-known saying: "A fish rots from the head down." If there are problems in some of our schools, including high teacher turnover, look first to the school and district leadership. I can guarantee you no one becomes a teacher to do a bad job. We care about our students. We work hard to help our students overcome their obstacles. An obstacle we can't overcome on our own is poor leadership.

The School Committee needs to shine a bright light on this situation. A good place to start would be to allow members of the community to speak their minds at the beginning of every regularly scheduled meeting. The committee should also diligently investigate every allegation of bullying and intimidation. But it's important to get to the bottom of what is going on in the Everett Public Schools if we are to move forward in unity as a district and a community.

Until then, rest assured: We will not be silenced.

Kim Auger
President
Everett Teachers Association

to try to improve the school success. Auger said the administration got wind of the "donuts and coffee" meeting, and called the police on them as a bullying tactic.

"We asked them to join us in the parking lot of the Parlin School to greet staff as they entered the building," wrote Auger. "We gave them coffee and doughnuts and an opportunity to share their concerns. Three police officers showed up and allegedly told us that the school administration claimed that we were 'picketing' and would have to disperse. That's nonsense. We have every right as both citizens and union leaders to talk to our members. We left the lot as ordered, but we will not be silenced."

As a result of that incident, other district teacher unions have gotten wind of the incident and have held coffee and donut sessions in their parking lots, pointing out on each occurrence that the police hadn't been called.

"Everett educators do an excellent job despite the hostile work environment that too many of us face," she wrote. "There is a well-known saying: 'A fish rots from the head down.' If there are problems in some of our schools, including high teacher turnover, look first to the school and district leadership."

Foresteire said the allegation of harassment is baseless, and noted that if there had been a large crowd, it could have frightened the children or their parents.

"You don't know who or what you'll draw there when you put out such an invitation," he said. "It was about safety."

A police report indicated at 7:10 a.m. School employee Charles Obremski called the station to ask for the police to check out the situation in the back of the Parlin. An officer was dispatched there and found a group of about eight individuals standing by the handicap ramp to the Parlin. The officer found several teachers waiting to go inside and two MTA representatives that had been invited by the ETA.

"I advised the group of individuals the school administration wanted them removed from the property," read the report. "The teachers said they would be entering the building shortly and the union representatives would be leaving the property at the same time."

The situation lasted approximately nine minutes, when the officer radioed in that the situation was under control and he cleared the scene.

State officials launch campaign to reduce stormwater pollution

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP), in partnership with the Statewide Stormwater Coalition, announced the launch of a new stormwater awareness campaign to help Massachusetts cities and towns comply with new federal stormwater management requirements. The announcement was made during an event at the Joseph H. Gibbons Elementary School in Stoughton.

"Stormwater runoff threatens the health of all water resources across Massachusetts," said Energy and Environmental Affairs Secretary Matthew Beaton. "This unique public education campaign provides important information to residents, businesses and developers about what they can do to reduce these contaminants in our environment and keep our rivers and streams safe from pollution." The public awareness campaign, "Think Blue Massachusetts," is designed to generate awareness among businesses and residents of the effects of stormwater pollution on waterways and wetlands and encourage people to do their part to reduce pollution from stormwater runoff. The campaign was developed by the Statewide Stormwater Coalition with a grant from MassDEP and will help 260 communities in Massachusetts meet new federal requirements for stormwater management. The new permit, called the Municipal Separate Storm Sewer System (MS4) permit, requires cities and towns to implement a host of stormwater pollution prevention efforts, including public educational activities and outreach to targeted audiences.

"The new campaign is a toolkit to help cities and towns meet the public education and outreach requirements of MS4," said MassDEP Commissioner Martin Suuberg. "The material is available online and can be easily downloaded and customized to reflect a community's individual needs. It provides one-stop shopping for our local officials who are working hard to meet these requirements."

Stormwater runoff occurs when rain or snow-melt travels along roadways and parking lots and picks up contaminants on its way to local rivers, streams and groundwater sources. Contaminants -- such as fertilizer, trash, oils, gasoline, solvents, pollen and pet waste -- is washed into catch basins and into our stormwater systems and eventually discharged into the environment. The new requirements in the MS4 permits will reduce the overall amount of stormwater runoff entering our waterbodies.

a projected shortfall. The $2.5 million provided to the City in the state supplemental budget will be used to replenish the municipal budget and reduce our residents' tax burden."

The announcement came late on Tuesday afternoon. Earlier on Tuesday, Supt. Fred Foresteire said he hadn't heard whether or not the mayor intended to pass the money on. However, he said he was concerned when he did not see the item on the City Council agenda for Tuesday night, Oct. 9.

"Sal DiDomenico got that for us and 11 other communities in the Commonwealth within the state's Supplemental Budget," said Foresteire. "The State Legislature approved money to these communities, including Everett, because they get hurt with the new formula for counting Economically Disadvantaged students...I just hope the mayor can find his way to take care of it. It goes right to the bringing back teachers and reducing class sizes. That's what it was intended for."

Late Tuesday afternoon, Sen. Sal DiDomenico said the money he secured was intended for Everett Schools. The same situation played out in Chelsea with the same appropriation. That money in Chelsea is now in the process of passing from the City to the School Department there, where it will bring back teachers, crossing guards and school librarians.

DiDomenico said the same should happen in Everett.

"The purpose of this additional Chapter 70 funding was to be used for our public schools," he said. "I have been advocating for more resources for our schools since the state formula was adjusted, and we have been successful. By definition, Chapter 70 money is funding for our public schools and that was the expectation when these funds were secured."

Councilor Michael McLaughlin said on Tuesday that not having the item on the Council calendar was an indicator to him that the money was going to be held in City accounts again. He said he is one councilor who doesn't support that move.

"It's the schools' money, not the city's money," he said. "The bigger issue I have is we never gave the $6.5 million with the understanding or agreement that if we were to gain additional funding, we would go back to recoup some of that money. If that was the agreement at the beginning, that would be one thing, but it was clearly not the case...The mayor said we were in a financial spot to give $6.5 million dollars and that's what we did with no terms attached."

CLF, local partners unite to support DEP decision on National Grid path

By Seth Daniel

Three powerful partners announced this week that they have filed a Motion to Participate within the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) appeal hearing on the decision to require National Grid to build and maintain a pathway on its property abutting the Malden River.

The decision by DEP came earlier in the summer and required National Grid to build and maintain a pathway along the Malden River, a decision that fortified the momentum of the Malden River Greenway Plan and unlocked a key piece of waterfront land that had been closed to the public for a century.

National Grid appealed that decision saying it would cost too much money, but now the Conservation Law Foundation (CLF) has called to be an official part of the process — speaking in favor of the DEP decision.

They will join the Mystic River Watershed Association (MyWRA) and the Friends of the Malden River within their partnership under the single motion.

CLF Staff Attorney Heather Miller said they would make the request, and then would be informed about whether they will be allowed. If allowed, they could present in person or in written comments.

"We feel like it's important to participate to protect our members and show our support for DEP's decision," she said. "We want to articulate why the DEP has the legal authority to require National Grid to provide this public access. We feel like we have a strong partnership of organizations...Our members live in the area and will be directly impacted by the decision. If denied these actions will be detrimental to their interests."

There has been no dates set for the hearings regarding the appeal of the DEP decision, but something is expected on the calendar in the fall.

Last month was the first annual Ella O'Donnell Family Fun Run in Peabody supporting pediatric children's cancer. The race saw more than 500 walkers and runners out supporting #EllasArmy. Members of #EllasArmy, Councilor Anthony DiPierro, Paul Dobbins and Mike Dipietro all Everett guys helped welcome the large group and volunteered making a great day happen. The race saw a large group of Everett Residents and Police Officer's joining together for this cause, a group that supported Ella during her battle with cancer nearly two years ago. Councilor Mike McLaughlin ran the 5K race, finishing with a career-best 23 minutes.

And they've learned a little more about their food too.

"I've learned so much doing this," said Rita Azulay. "I never had a garden and never thought I'd like it, but that changed. Before this, I thought everything just grew in the supermarket!"

While holding a fresh stick of celery she planned to use in her soup, Judith Orlandino said it's about getting back to the basics.

"We have to get back to the basics and that's what this is - getting back to the basics," she said. "I believe all the modern diseases we have now, we may not have so much of that if we got back to the basics like this. My grandparents came over from Europe so I grew up with this kind of thing. They had five lots of land. They had a garden, some chickens and a pig. When I had children, I didn't have a garden. All those years I wanted to do it again. This program made that possible."

Mayor DeMaria defends Columbus Day in Globe op-ed

By Seth Daniel

For all of his accolades in the 13th Century, Christopher Columbus has had rough seas here in the 21st Century, as indigenous groups and many in the general public have begun to call for a change to the holiday that tends to skew towards highlighting the Italian culture more than the explorer himself.

Add Mayor Carlo DeMaria to the list of defenders of the holiday, which took place on Monday, Oct. 8.

In a point/counterpoint Globe piece last week, Mayor DeMaria represented the pro-Columbus side of things, arguing that the holiday and Columbus was a point of pride for him going back to his days in elementary school.

"When I was in grade school, I learned that Christopher Columbus was an Italian sailor who discovered America," he wrote. "For Italians, this has always a matter of pride. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1937 chose the name of a well-respected Italian American in our history, and established Columbus Day as a national holiday through an act of Congress... And across America, Columbus Day is when those of us who are of Italian ancestry celebrate our heritage."

DeMaria said that the movement to re-name the holiday is understandable, but misdirected. He said it is true that Columbus and his men were known to enslave and slaughter Native Americans, and it should not be in question that they are inherently wrong and terrible. That said, DeMaria said we shouldn't evaluate people of yesterday under today's lenses. He urged everyone to understand that the day is a celebration for Italians, who faced discrimination in the 1800s in American and united behind the pride of Columbus.

He said renaming the day would effectively be a slap in the face to so many great Italians who have helped build the United States.

"And while I understand and support the desire to recognize indigenous peoples, it should be done on a different date," he wrote. "When I was young, a first-generation Italian-American, my parents spoke no English and received no governmental as-stance. However, this country enabled them to work and raise a family. They taught my brother and me to speak only English, love our country, and help and respect all people. Let's stop going back over 500 years and judging someone by today's standards. I hope we can all put the past behind and move forward."

munity how to make it safe for children to play and bicycle and give pedestrians priority over cars. This artwork provides connections between the Northern Strand Community Trail, the Madeline English School, the Riverwalk, and recreational facilities.”

Chase said he is a transportation planning teacher at Tufts University and students came up with the idea to do such a thing about five years ago in Somerville, creating the concept of neighborhood greenways. Three years ago that idea became reality, and they also did other projects in Boston.

Now, they have turned to Everett, and Prescott Street is the first place they decided to focus upon. “Prescott Street is interesting because it connects with the Northern Strand Trail,” he said. “We have been planning for a while and having lemonade socials, but the crosswalks were our first action. The crosswalk idea is very cost effective and makes an impression. It also motivates people to get involved. Once they see that kind of change, they might want to get involved.”

The effort on Sunday focused on the gateways to Prescott Street, mostly up by Main Street where so many cars bang a right or left to go down the street. Because it is wide and downhill, many people go about 25 to 35 mph, Chase said. The goal is to find ways to slow them down to about 20 mph or slower. The crosswalks grab their attention, he said, and it’s something they have learned has some effect.

As the winter rolls around, Chase said they will be working with the Art Department at the Madeline English School to come up with some public art projects for Prescott Street.

“I’m not sure what that would look like or be, but it’s a 30-foot-wide street so there’s lots of extra space to do something interesting there,” he said. “The key will be having residents and kids find what they want to do and then work to get it done. Right now, this is going to be our winter planning project.”

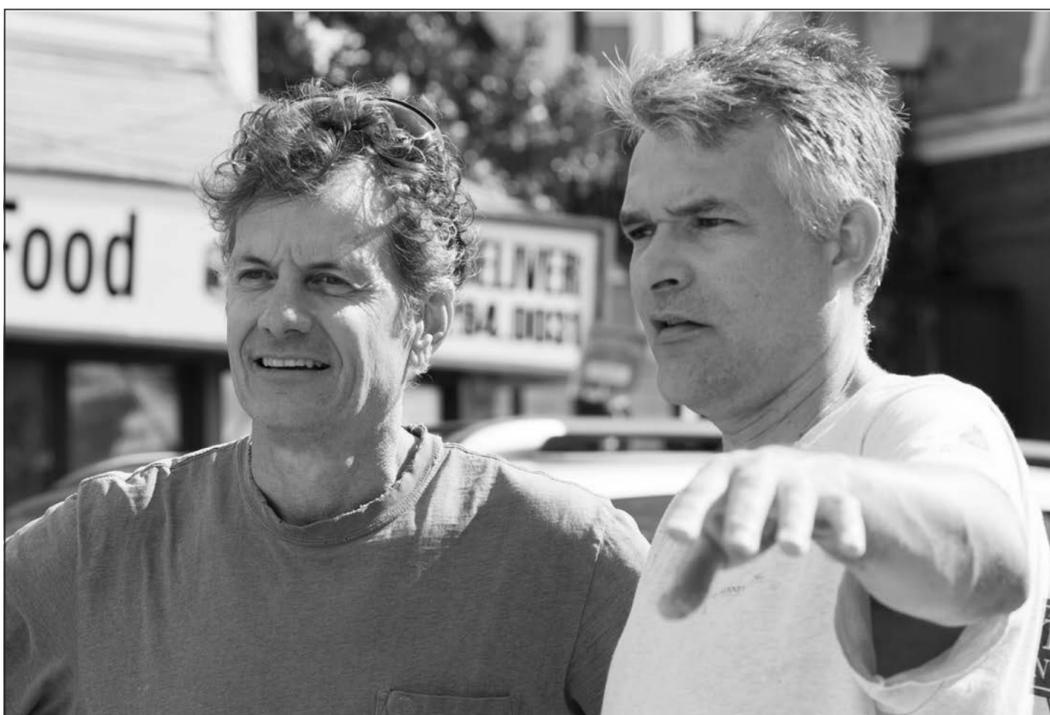

Chase said the major focus of NeighborWays is to pick one street, and then encourage residents to take over the momentum of the planning. That’s because Chase said their purpose is to let residents, not NeighborWays, lead the effort.

“We try to encourage residents to take control of it so they are making these decisions about what they would like to see, and not us,” he said.

A long-term hope, Chase said, is to see Prescott Street have more park-like attributes such as trees or curb bump outs. Right now, he said, the idea is to get people on the street all rowing in the same direction.

Fabio Laigner and Mark Chase painted the crosswalk at the intersection of Main and Prescott streets.

Neighborways founder, Mark Chase, reviewed the plan with volunteer Fabio Laigner.

Jamie Gentile consolidated buckets of paint while volunteering on Sunday.

Artist Aliza Vaida added red paint between the crosswalks on Prescott Street to make them more visible

DiDomenico Secures $75K for Opioid Treatment Services at CHA

Sen. Sal DiDomenico (D-Everett) recently announced that his amendment providing $75,000 for the Cambridge Health Alliance Everett Care Center to increase access to office-based opioid treatment services was included in the final Fiscal Year 2019 budget.

As Assistant Majority Leader of the Massachusetts

Senate, DiDomenico was able to secure a number of amendments for his district in the Senate version of the budget, including this $75,000 for CHA. After filing this amendment in the Senate version of the budget, he worked to advocate for its inclusion in the final version of the budget. “Cambridge Health Alliance provides many critical health services for our community, including substance abuse and addiction services,” said Sen. DiDomenico. “As we continue to battle the devastating opioid epidemic in our Commonwealth, it is crucial that we provide our local care providers with the resources they need to continue providing first-class care to their patients. I am very proud to support CHA and the work that they do, and it is my hope that this $75,000 will go a long way towards supporting their opioid treatment services.” This is the second budget cycle that Sen. DiDomenico has secured additional funding to increase access to CHA Everett Care Center’s office-based opioid treatment services.

Everett rallies for win over BC High, 34-10

By Cary Shuman

Everett found itself in an unfamiliar situation in the first quarter of its game against Boston College High School Friday night: it was facing a 10-point deficit and the large delegation of BC High fans were no doubt thinking this could be the end of the Tide's 24-game streak.

But sophomore quarterback Duke Doherty, sensational senior Mike Sainristil and the rest of the Crimson Tide went on a 26-point scoring spree in the second quarter and ultimately left James Cotter Field with a decisive 34-10 victory.

Doherty launched the comeback with a 56-yard touchdown pass to Sainristil, who caught the football after it was tipped by a BC High defensive back. Sainristil then raced to the end zone to close the gap to 10-6.

Sainristil made another big play just seconds later when he intercepted a BC High pass. Doherty's 30-yard pass to sophomore Tyrese Baptiste set up junior running back Jaden Mahabir's 4-yard touchdown run, giving Everett a 12-10 lead.

Duke Doherty named Boston Herald High School Football Star of the Week

By Cary Shuman

His Everett High teammates know him as Duke Doherty. Public address announcers in away stadiums have been calling him Dillon Doherty.

The Boston Herald honored "Dillon" Doherty as one of Danny V's High School Football Stars of the Week for his excellent performance in a 34-10 victory over Boston College High School.

Doherty was 14-of-21 for 222 yards while throwing three touchdown passes. His 19-yard missile to a streaking Eli Auguste between two BC high defenders in the end zone was of the spectacular variety.

"It was a post pattern," said Doherty. "We saw the opening and I had to get the football to him. It was a great win and a really good comeback. "It's a great feeling to bounce back like that. Mike [Sainristil] made a great catch and showed a lot of poise in that moment on that first touchdown. He's a great athlete."

Doherty said the team never stopped working hard while facing a 10-0 deficit.

"It's like boxing – if you get punched, you're not going to stand there and keep getting punched, you're going to want to punch back and it's who wants to work the hardest," said Doherty.

Sainristil strikes again on offense and defense

Halfway through the 2018 regular season, has there been a better football player in Massachusetts than Everett High School senior Mike Sainristil?

The 5-11-inch, 180-pound senior has provided major-league highlights each week and the 34-10 victory over Boston College High School was more of the same exploits.

Sainristil's touchdown catch on a pass that was tipped by a BC High defense showed his concentration and

EHS Roundup

EHS boys soccer defeats Winthrop, 6-2

Dieu-son Fleuradin notched a hat trick and Andydavens Elysee scored a goal and earned four assists to pace the Everett High boys soccer team to a 6-2 victory over Winthrop last Tuesday evening under the lights at Everett Stadium.

"We made the most of our opportunities," said EHS head coach Oswald Constanza. "We made nice crossing passes when we brought the ball deep and then finished well."

Bryan Matal-Huiza also reached the back of the Winthrop net.

Two days later the Crimson Tide dropped a 3-1 decision to Charlestown. Elysee gave Everett an early 1-0 lead, but Charlestown brought the contest back to level before the intermission. The teams battled evenly for most of the second half until Charlestown broke the deadlock with 15 minutes to play.

Charlestown added an insurance goal in the waning minutes when the Crimson Tide pressed forward in search of the tying goal.

Two nights later Everett traveled to Acton-Boxboro and fell short by a 2-0 decision.

"Despite the loss, we played well against a very strong team," noted Constanza. "We had more opportunities than they did throughout the game, but we just couldn't find the back of the net."

Constanza and his crew now stand at 4-4-3 overall on the season, but are 4-1-2 in the Northeastern Conference South Division and still are in the running for the division title.

They have key games this week against division rivals, starting at Lynn English today (Wednesday) and then hosting Malden Friday afternoon speed on the same play. Just one play later, Sainristil, the cornerback, intercepted a pass that soon resulted in a Jaden Mahabir TD and a 12-10 lead.

Sainristil was asked about his two comeback-igniting plays that occurred within a matter of seconds on the clock.

"The safety tipped the football and it looked like it was going down but it was still in the air, so I caught it," said Sainristil. "What I was thinking was, find the safety on the opposite hash [mark] to make sure I could protect myself from taking a big hit. I saw he wasn't there and I went up the seam and broke to the left. It's one of those plays where your focus is what helps you."

"On the interception, I pressed the receiver on the line and messed up his whole route concept. It was supposed to be an out with a fade and I messed the whole thing up," said Sainristil. "The quarterback rolled out and had pressure on him and he threw it and I picked it off."

Sainristil said "it feels good" that the team has a 5-0 record and holds the No. 1 ranking.

"Usually when you're at the top, you have to know if you can maintain being at the top or if you're just going to let the season fall down, and right now as a leader of the team, I'm just trying to work on my best getting the guys to keep their heads – we haven't won anything special yet, so we have to keep going and practicing hard and don't take any teams lightly whether it's a lower ranked or higher-ranked team."

Sainristil said he has not made his official visit to Virginia Tech University yet, though he has given his commitment to attend the Division I school that plays in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

TIDE NOTEBOOK

Declan Smith, a 6-foot-1-inch, 210-pound senior, made a crunching tackle of the BC High quarterback. Gilbert Kabamba, Giovanni Raduazzo, Josaiah Stewart, Nathaniel Mehu, and Samy Lamothe also had key roles in the Everett defense that held BC High scoreless over the final two-and-a-half quarters.

Jaden Mahabir has been busy out of the Everett backfield and his breakaway speed is noteworthy.

St. John's Prep (4-1) defeated Catholic Memorial, 27-20, while Acton-Boxboro (5-0) rolled past Dracut, 35-7.

the BC High quarterback on third down. Jasheem Rivera blocked a punt and Diamani Williams pounced on the football at the Eagles' 19-yard line.

Doherty and the EHS offense capitalized immediately with a 19-yard strike to Eli Auguste in the end zone for an 18-10 lead. Doherty and Sainristil then combined for a touchdown as Everett carried a 26-10 lead in to the break.

Mahabir, who had an outstanding game in the Everett backfield, scored on a 19-yard TD run for the final score.

Everett High head coach Theluxon Pierre, whose team is 5-0 and atop the Division

1 North point ratings, was pleased with his team responded to the 10-0 deficit and the way his defense kept the Eagles off the scoreboard the rest of the way.

"That (10-0) deficit was on us, the defensive coaches – we were calling some stuff that we didn't need to call," said Pierre. "We went back to our regular game and we settled down and we were alright. The whole defense played well. Mike [Sainristil] had a big interception and he's doing his usual thing. This was a great team effort. We're happy to be 5-0 but there's a lot of work to be done."

BC High head coach Jonathan Brillo was pleased with the fast start but felt Everett's first touchdown was a momentum turner.

"We came out firing and we had them on their heels and our guys were flying around doing their job and we had a couple of bad breaks – we went for a pick and the ball got bobbled and [Sainristil] went for that touchdown," said Brillo. "Everett made some big plays. Other than that, I thought our guys fought real hard against a very good team and I told them in the long run this game is going to make us better down the line for our conference."

at 3:30. They travel to non-league foe St. John's Prep on Monday and then make the long ride to Gloucester on Tuesday.

EHS volleyball team gets back on track

The Everett High volleyball team earned another victory last week, bringing a halt to a three-game skid with a 3-0 win over Lynn English at home on Thursday.

"It definitely feels good to be on the winning side again," said EHS head coach Mike Fineran, whose team had put together a three-game winning streak before hitting a rough patch in the Northeastern Conference. "There are a lot of good teams in the league, and it's very competitive. If we don't play like we can, then we're in trouble."

The trouble started early for Everett last Tuesday at Lynn Classical. The Lady Crimson Tide found themselves in a 7-2 hole, but junior setter Saunti Burton served six in a row to give Everett the lead, which Laryssa Souza helped extend to 15-12.

Senior Kayla Gomes had three kills and senior Janeka Vilmont had a pair of aces and a pair of kills, but the Lady Crimson Tide came up short, dropping the first set, 25-22.

Poor passing led to another early deficit for Everett in set two. Senior Eloiza Goncalves served four in a row to cut the deficit to 13-8 and Burton served four of her own to make it 19-14, but Everett could inch no closer, falling, 25-15, and then succumbing in the third set, 25-13.

"We were disappointed in the outcome, certainly," said Fineran. "But we'll learn from it and get better."

Everett had a chance two days later to turn the tide when Lynn English traveled to Everett. This time it was the Lady Crimson Tide establishing the early lead, as Vilmont powered the Tide to a 7-0 lead. Vilmont added a block, a kill, and a dig in the frame; Gomes added three more kills; and senior Daichney Vaz had two blocks and four kills in the set, which Everett won 25-19.

Senior captain Anna Thomaz had four service points, including the last two points in the game, and junior Bianca May added two kills and three aces in six serves in the win.

That duo would do it again in the second set, as Thomaz's serving turned a 5-4 deficit into an 11-5 advantage and May had four kills. Burton and Goncalves combined for four aces and eight points, while Shakira Fedna and Lorena Corbelli played stellar defense in the back row as Everett cruised, 25-13.

The third set opened with Vilmont and Thomaz each landing three aces en route to an 8-2 Everett lead. Fedna and Corbelli were again solid on the back line, but the set belonged to May, who notched another four kills and six service points, including three aces, the last of which sealed the win for the Lady Crimson Tide, 25-20.

"Bianca was the star of the game, no question," said Fineran, "but that was a total team win. She doesn't get those kills if we don't pass to our setters first. Our setters, Saunti Burton and captain Ava Labella, are the unsung heroes of our team. They are in charge out there and it's their job to keep everybody alert, engaged, and involved. They played great, as did everyone."

Fineran and his crew have a busy week. They were set to play Lawrence this past Monday and will travel to Medford tomorrow (Thursday). They will make the short trek across town to Pope John XXIII on Friday and then host Malden on Monday and Beverly on Tuesday.
